NOVEL ROLE FOR STAR

IN "HER MAD BARGAIN"

As a girl whose life is insured against suicide, Anita Stewart has one of the most novel roles of her career in her latest starring vehicle, "Her Mad Bargain," a Louis B. Meyer-First National attraction soon to be shown at the Wilson Theatre Saturday. This peculiar twist in the story comes as a logical turn of events, and marks the beginning of a pretty little romance which culminates in Anita's receiving a significant diamond ring from Walter Mc-

The star's attempt at suicide is a mere incident in the unwinding of this fascinating theme, but it proves to be the turning point of the girl's fortunes. Up to the time when death seemed preferable to a miserable future, Alice Lambert's life had been crowded with sorrow and disillusionment. But David Leighton arrives upon the scene just as she is about to kill herself, and, by accusing her of being a coward and a quitter, he induces her to allow him to insure her life for one year. Provided with monument funds and a new attitude towards life, Alice soon learns that luxury does not necessarily mean happiness and also that she has much to live for. At the end of her probation period, she assures David that there is no further need to insure her against suicide and joyfully accepts his proposal of marriage.

MOUNT VESUVIUS

AGAIN IN ERUPTION.

Naples, March 6.—Mount Vesuvius again is in eruption. The phenomena began with two mild shocks of earthquakes which were followed by collapse of the eruptive cone, 290 feet high which stood inside the crater.

The fall of the cone was accompanied by rumblings and explosions and the throwing out of ashes and incandescent stones. Lava poured out from the crater in streams and in the 24 hours since the disturbance began it covers an area of 100,000 square feet.

The lava has formed round the crater an incandescent band more than 300 feet wide. The temperature of this molten mass is 2,000 degrees Fahrenheit. The width of the crater is now 1,500 feet. Professor Malladra, director of the observatory on Vesuvius, descended into the crater at the beginning of the eruption. The heat scorched his face.

RICH LONDON BANKER IS SLAIN IN HIS HOME

Israel Hart Slain By Blow on Head—Police Charge Young Lawyer With Murder

London.—Israel Hart, a wealthy banker, and prominent in Jewish circles, was found dead in the library of his handsome home early today. He was killed by a blow on the head with some blunt instrument. Surgeons fixed the time of death at about midnight.

Hugh Colman, a young lawyer of prominent family, who has been attentive to the only daughter of the slain man, has been charged with the murder. Testimony of the butler that he had quarreled violently with the older man last night, and his own admission that he owed him a note he was unable to pay, combined with the refusal of the prisoner to explain his whereabouts at the time of the murder, are the chief facts in the case against the young man.

The reason why Hugh Colman would not explain his whereabouts, and the results of his attitude furnish the strong dramatic story of "The Oath," produced by R. A. Walsh, one of the big five productions of Associated First National Pictures, Inc., which will be the attraction at the Wilson theatre today.

HIGH SCHOOL STUDENTS

OFFERED SCHOLARSHIP.

Washington, D. C., March 6.—For the third consecutive year, a four years' university scholarship is being offered high school students to encourage them in the study of highway economics, according to an announcement today from the office of the Highway and Highway Transport Education Committee.

The scholarship, won previously by two young women residing respectively in Idaho and West Virginia, is given by Harvey S. Firestone, Akron, Ohio, a member of the committee, for the best essay written on the subject: "How Good Roads Are Developing My Community," submitted in a national essay contest. Essays, according to rules announced today, are not to exceed 700 words in length, and must be in the hands of the committee, by the deadline of May 1. All students of high school grade, including both public and private schools are eligible to compete.

Aims of the contest, according to the committee, are the stimulation of thought, discussion and study of the problems of highway transport, and the promotion of highway engineering and highway economics and highway engineering and highway economics.

ing, as a corollary to a course in these subjects now being prepared for the committee by the leading economists and engineers of the country for use in colleges and universities.

Not only are high school pupils of the forty-eight states eligible to compete, but notices are being sent to the school authorities of the territories and possessions of the United States. Pupils in the District of Columbia, Alaska, Porto Rico, Hawaii and the Philippines submitted manuscripts in last year's contest. Announcements are being made at once to all school officials in the United States.

The conduct of the contest necessitates an organization for each state, being effected in the majority of instances through the state department of public instruction, or through a leading state university. These organizations, it is said, will receive the essays for their respective states, make a selection of the best submitted, and forward it to the office of the committee at Washington. Among the state universities that will conduct the contest in their respective commonwealths are listed the University of Kentucky, the University of North Carolina, the University of South Carolina, the University of Virginia, the University of North Dakota, the University of Maryland, the University of South Dakota, the University of Tennessee, and many others.

The contest last year was won by Miss Garland Johnson, a pupil in the Bridgeport, West Virginia, high school. Miss Johnson, upon her graduation, will attend one of the leading women's colleges, all tuition and reasonable expenses being defrayed by the donor of the scholarship. The first scholarship offered was awarded Miss Katherine F. Butterfield, Weiser, Idaho, who is now in her second year in college under the terms of the scholarship. The scholarship is valued at not less than $4,000.

Complete rules of the contest, a bibliography, suggestions and other information may be had upon application to the Highway and Highway Transport Education Committee, Willard Building, Washington, D. C., it is announced.
